Unauthorised products

Reducing the number of poor quality, unauthorised products remains a priority for OGC and its partners. The Best Management Practice products are protected by Crown copyright and trade mark regulations, and as such a licence is required to use any of the material. If you would like to let us know about a product or service that does not have a licence you can contact us at:

Best Management Practice Products And Services

Recognising OGC Official products and related services

OGC has introduced the swirl symbol below as a mark of quality. It is used by OGC's official partners (TSO and APMG) and it is used to identify official publications and services:

OGC has also introduced the official product stamp which is used on OGC official products for example:

Licensed products and services

OGC also incorporates the swirl mark in other logos to denote products and services that are officially licensed, for example licensed products, accredited training providers and software products, all of which have all been through a rigorous review process.

You can find details of which products and services are licensed on APMG's website: www.apmg-international.com.

Endorsed products

You should also look for this endorsement mark:

The mark denotes a quality non-official product or service which contains a large amount of compatible material. OGC and its partners have introduced the scheme along with this logo to encourage the development of innovative, high quality products by third parties. This provides customers and users of Best Practice with a wide choice of easily identified, quality products.
